New leader to drive the next phase of growth at workplace managed services provider.

LONDON, 9th December 2024: Aurora Managed Services ('Aurora'), today announced the appointment of Martin Oxley as the new Interim Chief Executive Officer. Oxley will replace Andy Moffitt who has decided to leave the business after nearly 4 years in the CEO role.

Oxley is a business leader with a superb track record in dynamic high-growth PE companies and has been CFO at Aurora since joining the firm 3 years ago. He previously held transformational Directorship roles across multiple sectors, 15 years of which have been in IT Services.

Aurora Chairman Robin Stanton-Gleaves said: "I am delighted to confirm Martin as our new Interim Chief Executive. Martin is a dynamic, results-oriented leader who has a tremendous background of experience and an impressive record of innovative yet pragmatic management in highly leveraged firms, consistently delivering growth and enhanced profitability. I look forward to Martin realising the full potential of Aurora which is to become a recognised leader in managed services, delivering growth and value for its shareholders."

"I would also like to take this opportunity to thank Andy Moffitt for his leadership and contribution to Aurora, and to wish him well for his next step. Andy joined Aurora in 2020 as Service Director before taking the CEO role in 2021 and the changes he made to the company means Aurora is better positioned for advancing into the next stage of growth."

Oxley said: "I am delighted to have been appointed to lead Aurora. It is a business with vast potential, underpinned by a highly talented team who take great pride in providing the highest levels of service to our customers. In today's hybrid workplace, organisations are looking for guidance, expertise and pro-active care from their managed services provider and I am convinced Aurora has the people, technology and passion to become a leader in this space."

Pemberton Asset Management, one of the leading private credit managers and owners of Aurora Managed Services Limited, recently appointed Robin Stanton-Gleaves as Chairman to further strengthen the senior leadership team at Aurora for the next phase of growth and acquisitive expansion.

Stanton-Gleaves has over 30 years of experience in the managed services sector and was the CEO of Apogee Corporation Ltd, the UK's largest independent Europe-wide managed service provider for document and process technology with turnover of £230million, which was acquired wholly by HP Inc. Prior to leading Apogee, Stanton-Gleaves was founder of Balreed Digitec, a firm he led from start-up which was acquired by Apogee Corporation in 2015.
